Father James

Today the Church honours the birth of John the Baptist. In our calendar only the birth of Mary and Jesus are similarly commemorated. What is it about John that makes him so special? He is a figure of strength and courage, unafraid of speaking out against injustice and calling to account those who should know better. His boldness would cost him his life but he did not waver. He remained faithful though he made little progress; he persevered, though he was taunted, ridiculed and, despite his innocence, beheaded. As a model of faithfulness and determination, John the Baptist is without peer. But he is also a very significant bridge, standing in the gap between two covenants: the agreement, or testament, that marked the Hebrew people as the People of God, and the agreement made by the death and resurrection of Jesus that brought to birth the new People of God, the Church of Jesus Christ.

As the cousin of Jesus, John is our cousin, too. May his faithfulness and determination rub off on us, making our witness strong and bold.
